

ARTHUR GRIMES : CURRICULUM VITAE

SUMMARY DETAILS

I am a research economist and academic, with strong links to public policy. My two principal roles are (i) Professor and Chair of Wellbeing and Public Policy at Victoria University of Wellington's School of Government, and (ii) Senior Fellow at Motu Economic and Public Policy Research. I also Chair the Hugo Group. From 2003-2013, I was Reserve Bank of New Zealand Chairman where I was previously Chief Economist and architect of inflation targeting. In 2005, I was awarded the NZIER Economics Award recognising excellence in areas of economics that relate to New Zealand's economic welfare, and in 2013 was awarded the NZ-UK Link Visiting Professorship to the University of London. I was President of the New Zealand Association of Economists from 2015-2017. My current research focuses on the economics of wellbeing, and urban economics.
